Carbon RX Presents the World's 1st Global First Nations Carbon Summit

Carbon RX is proud to announce that the Honourable Bob Rae, Canada's Ambassador to the United Nations, will be our Keynote Speaker at the world's first Global First Nations Carbon Summit. Canada's Ambassador to the UN will share his perspectives on how the UN's priorities are affecting global ambitions to reduce the effects of climate change and what it means for you.

Honourable Bob Rae,
Canada's Ambassador to the UN

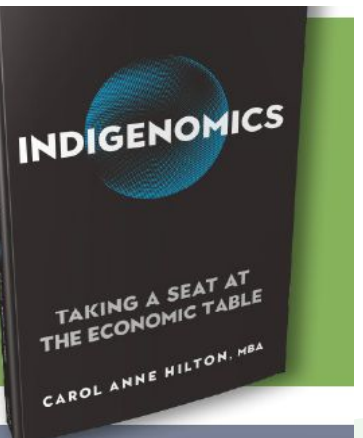

The summit will feature the perspectives and insights of those who are taking steps to address carbon reduction through the application of technology, land use and other practices in a meaningful way.

The recognized and acclaimed author of Indigenomics, Carol Anne Hilton, will present on how First Nations can Take a Seat at the Environmental Table.

This event will be held in Regina, Sask. and also streamed live via Zoom. We anticipate individuals in person and virtual attendees from around the globe. Attendees will range from Chief and Council, Economic Development officers and businesses interested in learning more about the trends and opportunities in the First Nations carbon economy.
